

No Frills donation – Each year, Peter’s No Frills Mount Forest runs a “Give a Little, Help a Lot” fundraising campaign, through which customers can donate at the till in support of a community organization or charity. This summer, co-owners Peter Bacoyannis and Monica Szocinzi and their team at No Frills raised $5,256 in support of the Louise Marshall Hospital Foundation (LMHF) in the store’s most successful fundraising campaign to date. Second and third from left are Szocinzi and Bacoyannis, along with several No Frills staff members. LMHF development officer, Amy Van Huss, was on hand to accept the donation. Submitted photo

Building permits expected this month for Arthur residential development

JORDAN SNOBELEN
REPORTER

WELLINGTON NORTH - Holding provisions have been removed from most lots in an ongoing residential development in northeast Arthur.

Vaughan-based Cachet Developments Inc. is developing just under 28 acres of land bordered by Domville Street to the north and Preston Street to the east.

Holding provisions were in place until the municipality could ensure sewage and water servicing could be provided for the development, and other agreements could be reached.

In April council bypassed the township’s policy on sewage unit allocations - restricting the maximum number of units to 15 per cent of the Arthur Wastewater Treatment Plant’s uncommitted reserve capacity - and awarded all 197 requested units between 2022-23 to get the development moving.

A subdivision agreement was signed between Cachet and the township this summer. Now that holding provisions are lifted on the property (with the exception of two lots waiting for street access and servicing) a site meeting will be held to confirm servicing has in fact been completed with a report going to council.

Following the report, chief building official Darren Jones said he expects building permits will be issued within the month.

Busload for charity – HomeTown Boutique, Apparel and Gifts held its second annual Fill-A-Bus event on Aug. 26. Foodland Mount Forest collected donations at cash registers, bringing in $2,397, which store officials used to go shopping and fill more than eight carts. The Mount Forest Lions Club donated $500 and HomeTown Boutique collected $880 in cash, in addition to considerable donations of food, at a table set up outside the store. “We want to thank Foodland Mount Forest, Cooks Bus Lines and the Mount Forest Lions Club,” organizers state. All proceeds went to the Mount Forest Community Food Pantry. From left: Emma Jeffries and Kelly Dimick of HomeTown Boutique, with Foodland owner Kim Catalano and members of the Foodland staff. Correction

One of the organizers was misidentified in an article on page 8 of the Sept. 1 issue of the North Wellington Community News (“Music in the Park concert to raise funds for Ukraine.”)

Joan Hendershot is the local music teacher involved in organization of the event, which was held on Sept. 2.

The Community News regrets the error.
